Organic farming is a work of passion for local couple

by Jack West, Intern

Off a dirt road near Opp, Ala., a small, organic farm grows medicinal herbs and spices while also teaching anyone who will listen about the importance of the earth, its natural systems and their sustainability.

Greg and Carole Lolley own and operate Mayim Farm. Greg worked as a technician at Fort Rucker for 32 years before deciding to open an organic farm and pursue his passion.

"I didn't actually retire," he said. "I changed careers. I work more now than I did at Fort Rucker."

They began work on the farm seven years ago, and Greg sports a chest-length beard that may not have been shaved since then. A sign on the gate out-front declares Mayim Farm to be an "organic farm," that uses "no chemical spray."

That idea of all-natural farming is central to Mayim Farm and the Lolleys.

"We try to work within the system that God created," Greg said. "You have to work within the system. If you don't, eventually, you will lose."

This means that no manufactured pesticides or fertilizers are used on the farm. Instead, Greg and Carole pay close attention to what kinds of plants naturally group together in forests, and then try to replicate it as much as possible.

"We don't want to just be sustainable," Greg said.

"We want to be regenerative. Right now, if you buy some good land and work it, it is not going to be as good in five years. We want to be able to work good land the right way so that you can give better land to your grandchildren."

At the same time, both are very upfront about how they continue to learn and try new things.

"Everything I do is an experiment," Greg said.

Not only are the Lolleys trying to be all-natural on the growing-side, but their produce is intended to be used as natural supplements for everything from headaches to high blood pressure. Turmeric, elderberries and moringa are their three most popular plants, all of which have medicinal uses.

"We are trying to bring back all the stuff that our great-grandmothers knew," Greg said. "They used to know what to get from the Children in attendance for Elba's Camp E.X.C.E.L. program last Thursday, June 13, enjoyed some very special visitors from the Big Bend Wildlife Sanctuary of Enterprise.

Elba's Camp E.X.C.E.L. motivates local children through learning experiences

by Jack West, Intern

"Yes, I can," said a group of kids in unison. "Yes, I will. Yes, watch me excel."

This is the motto of Elba's Camp E.X.C.E.L., a summer camp put on by the city's Parks and Recreation Department. It runs for a total of six weeks from June 3, through June 27, and July 8, through July 18.

"Camp E.X.C.E.L. is a summer program that services youth between kindergarten ages and ninth grade," said camp director Beverly Daniels Hamilton. "The camp is just a safe place where kids can come and have fun during the summer."

However, this is not just a safe place for kids to have fun. It is also a chance for kids to learn and interact with their friends while their parents are at work. That mission is imbued within the programs acronymic name.

EX-traordinary
C-hallenging
E-xciting
L-earning.

Hamilton said without this program, most of the kids would just be at home alone.

"We give parents all-day child-care at a nominal cost," Hamilton said.

The cost for the whole six weeks is $40 for one child, then $5 for each additional child.

"We felt that it was important to have a fee so that parents could kind of have some investment in it," Hamilton said. "We wanted to make it nominal because a lot of people can't afford a large amount. I think that is pretty good for what you get. You can't find child care like that."

Those fees are supplemented with funds from the parks and rec department as well as a grant which the program was awarded this year.

"We got an Access to Healthy Food grant which is from the National Parks and Recreation and the Walmart Foundation," Hamilton said. "It's a $30,000 grant, and the purpose of the grant is to give more kids the opportunity to have meals during the summer."

The camp also partners with other programs like the library's summer reading program, the local Extension

Several months into her new job now

Elba City Clerk says she loves helping her city

by Jack West, Intern

Sally Bane, the City Clerk of Elba, has spent most of her professional life in some kind of public service.

After leaving Montgomery, her home town, Bane went to Auburn University where she got degrees in rehabilitation services and special education. Then, she moved to Elba where her husband, Bradley Bane, is from.

Here, she worked at a nursing home and realized she had interests outside of what she graduated in. Specifically: accounting.

"Turned out I really liked math, and I wasn't half bad at it," Bane said.

Accounting work would follow Bane through her future jobs at both a nursing home in Enterprise and at a maintenance company at Fort Rucker. Bane said the work she was doing at Fort Rucker was especially meaningful.

"My time in Fort Rucker was special to me because I felt like I was helping my country," she said. "It's kind of silly, but in some way, I felt like I was doing my part the best that I could."

However, after a few years of working at there, Bane decided to try and move her professional life back to Elba, closer to her family.

"It was a great job," Bane said about her time at Fort Rucker. "I had no complaints about my job, except for I was 45-minutes away

"My grandfather once told me that there were two kinds of people: those who do the work and those who take the credit. He told me to try to be in the first group: there was much less competition." – Indira Gandhi

We are actually getting some meaningful rain in South Alabama as the halfway point of June 2019, slides pass us. However, according to the experts, each of us needs to enjoy and appreciate these rain showers because they will not last. Said experts are warning Alabama farmers to be prepared for a long, hot summer as 2019, will go in the history books as a drought year.

Last week, we noted here that Alabama voters will be voting on a major change in state school-board members (appointed or elected). That is not the only thing us real-smart voters will be deciding at the polls, but we are not sure just how many pertain to us in Coffee County. Our goal was to get an accurate count to talk about this week but alas the number is elusive. The people smart enough to figure out that total have yet to share it with us, and we come up with different numbers each time we run a tally. Don't worry, there are several months left to worry about these little voting issues so, hang in there (and maybe help us get that count).

The ongoing publicity disaster ripping at Boeing Aircraft just will not stop and probably shouldn't. One thing that pops up on our brain with every mention of "Boeing" is the saying of an old Army buddy who has now passed away. After our military service he bounced around but ended up in his dream job as an airline pilot . . . flying various Boeing aircraft. He loved flying and Boeing aircraft almost equally. In fact, his vocal position to his scheduling bosses at United Airlines was, "If it ain't Boeing, I ain't going." He had enough seniority that he got away with that position. His heart would be broken if he was here to witness the poor judgement and apparent lack of caring from the folks building the Boeing aircraft of today.

The announcement this week that President Trump was going to immediately begin deporting millions of illegal immigrants has shaken up some folks and given the 24-hour news channels fresh (or refreshed) talking points. First, it isn't going to happen. If the feds had the manpower and time, lawsuits up the stove pipe would bog it all down in the courts. The end results are that Trump gets his base excited 'because he tried.' He also continues to largely control what is in the news . . . talking about the deporting of immigrants rather than bad news polls, etc. of the 2020 presidential election.

BANE

from my family."

Family and professional life seem to be tied closely in Bane's life. After she and her husband were married in 2008, they tried to start a family, but eventually just decided to place the decision in a higher power.

"I had gotten a new position at the nursing home—my accounting position—so, we really just decided that we would sit back and let God control and concentrate on work and not be so worried about having a baby," Bane said. "The next month, I was pregnant."

With the help of close relatives and prayer, both of the Banes continued to work while raising a current total of three children.

"God has just always worked it out," Bane said. "Our kids have always been a benefit and an asset to us."

So, in November 2018, when Bane learned there was an opening in Elba for a city clerk position, she applied.

"After much prayer and consideration, we decided that I would apply, and if it was God's will it would work out," Bane said. "And if it wasn't, I had a great job so, I wouldn't really lose anything if I didn't get it."

Then, in the following month, it did work out. Bane got the position and began working for the city.

According to Bane, her time working for the City of Elba has a similar appeal as her work at Fort Rucker did.

"I feel like working for the city that I live in and that my children are going to school in is special because I have an input in our future," Bane said.

Having now worked in this position for a little over six months, Bane is getting to see what that input looks like and what it can do.

"I get to work with the mayor and work with Pat [Boothe] on the future of our city and how our funds can be best utilized for the future of our city," Bane said. "Not only in keeping a little back for a rainy day, but also how we can best invest in our future by doing different projects around the city to better the lives for the community."

Some of the projects that Bane is most excited for have direct impacts on the citizens of Elba.

"I am very excited about the downtown project," she said. "I think that is going to be wonderful. The revitalization and everything that we have got going on down there, I just really think is going to bring more community spirit to our little town."

The bypass is another project that Bane thinks will greatly benefit the city.

"I know this is kind of faux pas, but I am excited about the bypass and the traffic that it is going to bring through our town," she said. "I think that we can use that opportunity to really capitalize on bringing people in and just showing them how great our little town of Elba can be."

Looking forward, Bane said she wants to ensure that Elba is a place that its citizens can be proud of.

"My long-term goals for the city," she said, "would be for us to be a prosperous city where my children are proud of where they grew up, where we all still know each other by name, but we are grounded in Alabama. Where people know who we are and know how great our town is."

sion office, the elementary school's S.T.E.M. program and the Big Bend Wildlife Sanctuary. This leads to summer days of arts and crafts, snacks, character education and free-play, being mixed in with archery, gardening and wildlife presentations.

"We try to do things that are outside of their normal sphere," Hamilton said.

For instance, last Thursday [June 13], the Elba Recreation Center's gym was filled with kids and parents learning about owls, tortoises and habitat protection.

"Oooo's and 'Woah's" filled the room as volunteers from the Big Bend Wildlife Sanctuary brought out live animals to teach the kids about the importance of respecting nature.

Since the camp averages a little over 40 kids per day, a team of 11 volunteers and five certified teachers help

Hamilton keep control.

"I don't normally even work with kids," said Aja Reese, a rising high school senior and one of the camp volunteers. "I do this because I love these kids."

Nevertheless, it is difficult to overestimate how much this program owes to Hamilton.

"In 2015, we had a change of administration in the [parks and rec] department," Hamilton said. "I had kind of volunteered in the past, but they brought me on board to kind of develop and revamp the program."

Before the revamping in 2015, the camp was still a summer program run by volunteers, but it had very little structure.

"We gave it a mission and kind of a sense of purpose," Hamilton said.

yard and how make good, healthy tea out of it."

Perhaps one of the most important aspects of the farm for the Lolleys is being able to use it to teach kids (including college kids) about sustainability.

"When you try to teach something, you are going to learn more than the students do," Greg said. "Those kids are going to ask exactly the question that you don't know the answer to."

Not only have the Lolleys given presentations at summer camps in Elba, but they also have built a classroom-cabin on the farm to teach kids who want to come and take a tour.

Space has also been cut for a fruit orchard to be grown on the farm, but the government shutdown early this year stalled some work that is crucial to the orchard's success.

Regardless of setbacks, shutdowns, and 95+ degree heat, it is evident to any visitors at Mayim Farm that Greg and Carole Lolley are having fun.

"I'm enjoying what I'm doing now," Greg said. "I really enjoy this more than anything."

Mayim Farm can be found on Facebook, YouTube and Instagram where the Lolleys share recipes and farming tips with the next generation.

PASTOR'S CORNER

WILL JORDAN, PASTOR
NEWBIA BAPTIST CHURCH

What do we mean by double-minded? Erratic, undecided, unresolved, inconsistent, half-hearted, fly-by-night, spineless and irresponsible are just a few words synonymous with double-minded. A double-minded person is not a Christ-centered person. The self-life still tries to rule the double-minded and succeeds often. Self certainly hinders the double-minded man in decisions, choices, character, victory, certainty. Being of one mind with one accord is the only life of victory in Jesus. Being of two minds going different directions show that people are unsure and uncertain about their faith in Christ. Double-mindedness is a place where the Devil finds easy prey. Jesus, Himself speaks of the double-minded in Matthew 6:24; "No one can serve two masters; for either he will hate the one and love the other, or else he will be loyal to the one and despise the other. You cannot serve God and mammon". The Apostle Paul further addresses this in 1 Corinthians 10:21 "You cannot drink the cup of the Lord and the cup of demons; you cannot partake of the Lord's Table and of the table of demons". What then, do we mean by single-mindedness? Determined, faithful, committed, devoted, and enthusiastic, just to list a few. To be single-minded is the best way for the life of victory in Jesus. No defeat! No war within! No Struggle! The "whole" man...single-minded, owned, ruled, and controlled by Christ. It's a Christ centered life! The Christian life sounds easy enough. It ultimately comes down to two choices – obey or disobey. In everything we do, we choose whether to obey what God has directed us or to disobey. There is not a time when we disobeyed that we didn't have the option to obey. Yet we are trapped by the reality that we are still sinful and, fleshly creatures. Even with the help of the Holy Spirit we still choose to disobey far too often.

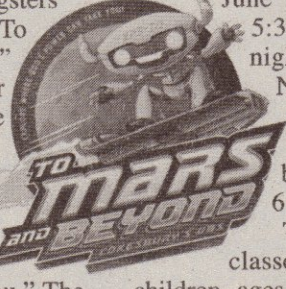

Not only do we choose to disobey, we choose to disobey repeatedly in the same areas whether they are anger, lust, gossip, selfishness, etc. We need to work on the idea of single minded obedience. It's not an easy thing or we'd be doing much better with it without a reminder. God gave us commands for a reason. Things he told us to do are for a good reason and are not just arbitrary decisions handed down from on high. Some things may not even make much sense to us, but that doesn't mean they aren't given for a good reason.

What, then does a lack of commitment do to a person's ability to serve the Lord? A lack of commitment disables and leaves the enslaved to wrong values which in turn create wrong loves, wrong priorities, and wrong pursuits. The result is that when faced with difficult, costly choices, the partially-devoted or double-minded believer can never make the right choices whereas a single-minded devotion of commitment gives one the freedom to make the right choices through a new set of heavenly and eternal values, priorities, and pursuits. Precisely, what does a single-minded disciple look like? He or she is one who is committed to walking through this life as a pilgrim, as a mere temporary resident, as one who is willing to travel light with a light grip on things. And as the Savior leads or guides, he or she is one who is willing to do what the double-minded person refuses to do – give up material wealth and the security it often provides along with possessions, prestige, comfort, and other things the world treasures and pursues. With his treasure in heaven and his eyes on the Savior, the devoted disciple does not labor for treasure on earth, or for a high standard of living, but may, as the Lord may call on him to do; live without position or power or possessions or popularity. An important question to reflect on is simply this: Am I trying to do the impossible in that I am seeking to serve both God and the world? A question, then that deserves serious reflection is: Who and what has my allegiance and devotion? Only we can answer these questions for ourselves. Man sees our actions – but God knows our heart.

Zion Chapel Ozone All-Stars win district

by Linda Hodge, Editor

The National Board of Dixie Youth Sports authorized a Division II baseball World Series for 12U, 10U and 8U age classifications beginning in 2019, and the Alabama Dixie Youth state board of directors voted to offer Division II play in the state this year.

In March of this year, the Zion Chapel Youth Sports [ZCYS] program was awarded the opportunity to host the Dixie Youth District 9 Division II Ozone [12U] tournament, and the Zion Chapel Ozone [12U] team made the most of that by winning the District Championship on its home field. The tournament was held June 13-15 at the Zion Chapel Youth Sports baseball/softball complex.

"To qualify for Division II leagues must have a total of nine teams or less in their baseball program," said Katie Driggers Eddins, District 9 Ozone tournament director [and ZCYS treasurer]. "This helps smaller programs like Zion Chapel advance and play in tournaments with other communities their size."

She said District 9 Division II includes: Samson, Coffee County [Elba/New Brockton], Hartford, Kinston, Slocomb, Zion Chapel, Goshen, and Brundidge.

"Hosting a tourney is a huge undertaking for organizations like ours. When we were awarded the tournament back in March, I never could have dreamed it would have run as smoothly as it did this past week," Eddins said. "We had perfect weather, sportsmanship from all teams involved (Slocomb, Hartford, Brundidge, and Zion Chapel), great officials, and awesome volunteers."

She said the Zion Chapel community as a whole came together in the biggest way possible to ensure the tournament was a success.

"Each day everywhere I looked there was someone ready and willing to help where ever it was needed," Eddins said. "From Ozone coaches, parents, grandparents, siblings, ZCYS softball players/coaches, ZCYS baseball coaches, Zion Chapel High School athlete volunteers, past officers/past members of ZCYS, ZC Athletic Club, ZC Band Boosters, and ZC High School coaches, everyone pitched in to make it the absolute best tournament I've ever been a part of personally."

The Ozone Rebels all-star team played with heart, drive and passion, according to Eddins. She said the team not only won the tour-namment but stayed undefeated through tourney play.

Zion Chapel had big wins over Slocomb [16-1], and Hartford [22-0] before again meeting Hartford in last Saturday night's championship game, where the Rebels won 13-1 to claim the district championship.

The win advanced the Zion Chapel Ozone team to the Dixie Youth Division II state tournament, which begins Friday, July 12, in Tuscaloosa, Ala. They will represent District 9 at that tournament.

"I have watched these players and coaches go after this dream of a district championship for the past six years," Eddins said. "I have watched them grow into outstanding young men who are dedicated to making Zion Chapel proud. All of their hard work paid off as they are our first baseball team in our organization's history to get the opportunity to compete at the state level."

The Zion Chapel Ozone team is led by Dustin Stinson with assistant coaches Jeremy Flowers and Jeremiah Eddins. Players are Jackson Adcock, Brodie Stinson, Mason Stewart, Preston Eddins, Austin Jordan, Kavan Brown, Tyler Bass, Brady Flowers, Ian Herbert, Luke Caldwell, Joseph LeGear and Alex Wilson.

Determination lifts Kinston 8U to earn District 9 Division II Dixie Youth district championship

by Linda Hodge, Editor

Coach Andy Sanders uses one word to describe his Kinston 8U all star team that won the District 9 Division II Dixie Youth 8U District Tournament Monday night, June 17, in Elba. That word is...Determination.

"First of all, we give all credit to God," Sanders said following Monday night's win. "We are here in the position tonight because of God, and we want to honor him. After that, it is determination. This is a group of very determined young boys."

Sanders said the team is comprised of boys that are determined to play the game of baseball the best they can, and he said they are determined put in the time it takes to be great ball players and teammates.

Sanders said that type of determination is exactly what vaulted the Kinston 8U team to an undefeated District Tournament, which now has them preparing to play in July in the Dixie Youth Division II State Tournament.

Kinston opened play in the district tournament on Thursday, July 13, with an 18-0 win over Zion Chapel. On Friday evening, July 14, Kinston met and defeated Slocumb by a final score of 22-4.

A game on Saturday night, June 15, against Hartford seemed to be settled with a 12-7 Kinston win; however, a reported error by the umpires in calling the game one inning too soon required both teams to return to the field Monday night, June 17, to play that one final inning. After that inning to complete the game, the final score was Kinston 18 and Hartford 7.

The defeat over Hartford placed Kinston in the championship game, which was played Monday night.

Hartford had to meet Slocumb Monday night to determine which of those two teams would meet Kinston in the championship game, and Hartford was the winner of that contest.

Kinston once again defeated Hartford in the championship game by a final score of 17-8 to win the district championship.

As winner and runner-up at the district tourney, both Kinston and Hartford advance to the state tournament in Tuscaloosa. The state event begins Friday, July 12th.

Coaches are Andy Sanders, Anthony Weeks, Justin Creech, and Brian Hawthorne.

Through all the determination that Coach Sanders speaks of regarding his team, he said the best part for him as a coach and them as players is, "they have fun!"

Kinston 10U all stars advance to district championship game

Behind strong pitching, good defense in the field and focused at-bats, the Kinston 10U team was able Monday night, June 17, to defeat Slocumb and advance to the championship game of the District 9 Division II Dixie Youth district tournament.

The championship game was held Tuesday night, June 18, in Kinston, at 6 p.m.

The Kinston team met the Coffee County 10U all star team, which made it to the finals by going undefeated through regular play of the tournament.

The outcome of Tuesday night's game was not available as of press time this week for the Clipper's print edition; however, it was posted on The Elba Clipper facebook page.

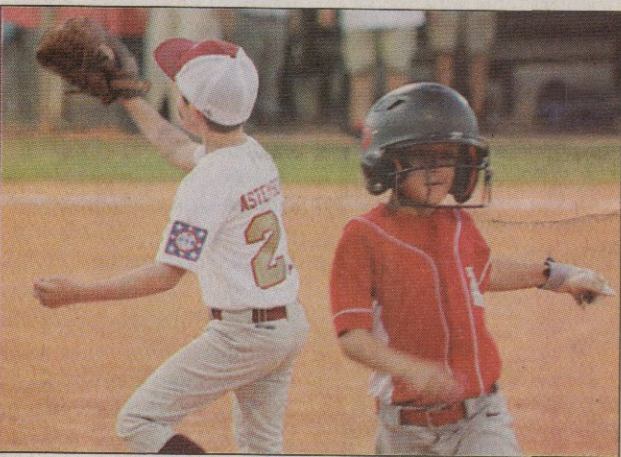

Kinston's Jackson Cowen reacts to being hit by a pitch during the game Monday night. Cowen had a solid night at the plate with two hits before being hit by this pitch.

Zion Chapel and Coffee County 8U teams meet in tourney

The Coffee County [Elba and New Brockton] 8U and Zion Chapel 8U all star teams met up in the district tourney Friday night, June 14, in New Brockton.

This was a must-win elimination game for both teams, and Zion Chapel came out on top winning in a close one 13-10.

Zion Chapel was eliminated the following evening in a loss to Slocumb.
